Royal Edition

The Queen of the Macdonald College Royal will be selected by a panel of judges from candidates chosen by the girls of the college. Personality, appearance, and an interest in the activities of the college are the qualities considered in choosing the Queen. The candidates for this year's Queen are, L to R, Trinkie Hooker, Elsie McVicar, Peggy McKell, Marilyn Miller and Yvette Reid.

The crowning will take place in the Men's Gymnasium following the official opening of the Royal. The Queen and her attendants will make a complete tour of the campus visiting the various booths, displays and live-stock show. The day will come to a climax with the presentation of the Green and Gold Revue, at which the Queen will be officially presented.

EDITORIAL

Very soon our Failt-Ye Times will have a new look. The Students' Council has consented to foot the bill for six issues of the college paper in the tabloid form. The cost of typing, printing, etc. will be about $160.00 per issue.

There are a number of difficulties associated with this new type of paper. First about twice as much material will be needed. Deadlines must be met as we are depending on an outside firm to do the printing. The material must be in Monday morning if the issue is to come out on Friday.

It must be remembered that this move is just an experiment so the quality of these six issues will determine whether we will continue to use this form. Since the quality of any paper depends on its contents we will need not only more material but the best material available. If things continue as they have in the past this will mean about three times as much work for the Staff of the paper, but if we could get some contributions from the student body the staff's task would be greatly lessened.

We once again make an appeal for more contributions. Book reports, interviews, English assignments, etc. or anything that would be of interest to the reading public. Maybe we could have a poet's corner for anyone who likes to express his or her thoughts in this way. Any constructive criticism will be most welcome whether it be in the form of letters to the Editor, One Man's Opinion or any way you wish to express it.

So let's hear from you so we may put out better papers. The Failt-Ye Times is supposed to be the "Voice of Macdonald College". How can half a dozen people properly express the views of a thousand people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:-

I fully agree with J.S. and J.T. that the Failt-Ye Times lacks the character and vigour of a good college paper. However, I thought the letter was not only inconsiderately written but rather bluntly phrased. Individualism is fine, but non-conformity flaunted in the face of society is a good shield for a person craving attention.

Literary and artistic talents alone, fellow students, do not make a college paper tick. There are many thankless jobs on the staff done well by your classmates and you possibly haven't noticed this because you've never even put your foot inside Publication office. If you've ever felt as though you were overburdened with a class edition or if you haven't, then just keep your witty little remarks to yourself until you spend several nights a week trying to drum up interesting matter for the next edition. Lest we forget, the college paper is put out entirely by students with the exception of the typist. The majority of college papers have professional assistance and if a little less furor were raised concerning student fees, then we too could attain the aid.

With fewer criticisms and a bit more activated interest, we could publish a college paper comparable to other universities.

Sincerely yours,

Gale Thomas,
Failt-Ye Staff.

The Editor,
Failt-Ye Times.

THE MACDONALD COLLEGE ROYAL HIGHLIGHTS 1959

Thursday, the 19th, is the big day at Mac - the day we are on view to the public. It is a day filled with fun and excitement so let's see you all out.

The show begins at 9 a.m. in the Judging Pavilion with the opening of the Livestock Exhibition. Cattle, sheep and swine will be shown all day. This feature is a must for all those interested in agriculture.

At 10:15 in the Men's Gymnasium, Dr. Barton will open the Royal. Dr. Barton is a former Dean of Macdonald, and has been active in the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. He represented Canada at the Hot Springs<sup>1</sup> Conference where the F.A.O. was founded and for twenty-five years was Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

Miss Dianne Raymond, President of the Canadian Dietetic Association will assist. Miss Raymond is the Home Economics guest of honour. The third guest is Jacques Debroin of Toronto.

Also at this time the Queen will be crowned in all the glory ever attributed to a college queen. She will visit different displays and demonstrations so that all may have a chance to see her. The winner of the Booth Competition will be announced.

One purpose of the Royal is to show High School Students the different aspects of Macdonald College in the hope that one day they will study here. A meeting for them has been arranged at 11 a.m. in the Assembly Hall.

The Senior Girls in Home Economics have planned salad demonstrations at 11:15 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Main Building. It is hoped that these demonstrations will be well attended by visitors. The salads to be demonstrated will be of special interest to farm women.

Physical Education students have prepared two gymnastic displays at 1 p.m. and 1:30 p.m., and folk dancing at 1:20 in the Women's Gym. The gym displays were well attended last year and are of special interest to High School students. Folk dancing is one of the new features of the Royal. Both the demonstrations in tumbling and folk dancing will be mixed.

One of the most thrilling events of the Royal last year was the Tractor Rodeo. Once again the dare-devils of the college with tractors and farm machinery will compete on the ice of Glenfinnan Rink at 1:30 p.m.

Let us see all you ladies at the Fashion Show in the Assembly Hall at 2:45 p.m. The sewing talents of the students in Teaching and Home Economics will be shown in dresses, suits, coats and sportswear, modelled by the students themselves.

The youngest visitors and anyone interested in puppets, may enjoy a fairy tale, put on by the Institute of Education, using puppets they made themselves. This will be at 2:45 p.m. and again at 3:30 p.m.

A must for visiting women is the Cookies Demonstration by Junior Girls in Home Economics at 3:30 p.m. in the Main Building. Recipes used will be all suitable for the busy housewife.

Competition will be high at 3:30 p.m. when the finalists will be eliminated for the Championship in Livestock. The race is always close with winners from each section competing for the coveted silverware.

Tea will be served to guests from 3:15 to 5:00 p.m. in the Home Management Apartment. There is a chance for the High School students to see the inside workings of the Home Economics Department and meet the staff members.

Another new feature of the Royal is Icerama. The routines and solos from Winter Carnival will be represented at 4:00 p.m. in the Glenfinnan Rink for the benefit of visitors on Thursday. You will not want to miss "Anchors Aweigh", "Malaguena", and "Wonderful, Wonderful, Copenhagen".

Bidding will be keen as products of Home Economics Demonstrations are auctioned off at 4:30 p.m. in the Main Building. Prize winning tea biscuits will also be on sale.

A display of various table settings will be on view all day in the Main Building. The First Year students in Home Economics will show a full table setting and eight other centerpieces for different occasions. Included will be themes for Valentine's Day, Christmas, and children's parties.

In the sewing lab of the Main Building, textile displays will be on view. The first year Home Economics theme is "Care of Clothes". Second year students are responsible for labelling and selection of clothing. Third year will show new fabrics and their uses. Sewing projects completed in class by fourth year students will also be on display.

Entries for the knitting and sewing competitions will be on view in the same room. Harding Yarns in Guelph and Patton and Baldwin in Montreal have given the prizes of wool and instruction books for knitting. The prize for skirt competition is a gift set of embroidered sheet and pillow cases from Dominion Textiles. A $3.00 gift certificate will be awarded from Harrison's for the best blouse. There will be other sewing prizes. The winner of the Tea Biscuit Competition will receive a $10.00 cheque from Standard Brands in Montreal. Second prize is $5.00 from the same company.

An exhibition of student art may be seen in the Seminar Room. Other displays, as described in the catalogue, may also be viewed.

For the first time there will be a trophy awarded to the student in Home Economics who has given the most whole-hearted contribution to the Royal. This will be presented along with other awards in the evening show.

The focal point of the evening is the "Green and Gold", a student production with a student cast. For fun, laughter and mixed entertainment, come and see "Write or Wrong".

on the moon, so that we can test our varieties of cereals on different soils. This kind of outburst is typical of the several "voice in the wilderness" outbursts we have had in the past few weeks. There seems to have been an awakening of people who have taken relatively little time to investigate the circumstances behind any situation, but who have brilliant ideas for a Utopia in Ste. Anne de Bellevue. What this college needs, and WHAT THIS COLLEGE CAN SUPPORT are two totally unrelated facts in the minds of these individuals.

Mr. Editor, I like facts. They are practical. Outbursts can be made by anyone with nothing better to do. In this letter, I am going to refer directly to the article, "What This College Needs is a Newspaper", but some comments can serve euqally well in other spheres.

First, I would like to clear up my position on this matter. I am not writing this because I, myself, was hurt over this article, but rather because it is largely an attack on the Editorial Staff, the chief of whom had to leave college at the end of Xmas exams, in a large measure, due to the SLAVE LABOUR he had to put into writing, compiling, and arranging our "little pamphlet". This is in line with the general consensus of opinion of the student body at Macdonald College. Once a committee is set up to carry on any job, the responsibilities of the student body towards that committee as regards helping them, is null and void. Stay clear of committees and you can go through college without doing any work---a highly parasitic college life.

I refuse to be dragged down to the petty level of refuting individually each suggestion put forth by this article. I am simply doing to state a few facts. In the fall of the year, we lost our editor. A letter was sent from this department to the presidents of all the classes in the college pointing out the vacancy and asking for suggestions. We received exactly one suggestion from all classes concerned. The Features Editor of the paper has written, with the exception of "One Man's Opinion" EVERY FEATURES ARTICLE THAT HAS APPEARED IN THE FAILT-YE TIMES. There are less than 20 regular subscribers to the Failt-Ye, including the editorial staff. I agree wholeheartedly with J.T. and G.S. that the paper should voice the opinions of the students, but then, I will ask in the same breath, why is it, that out of 900 students, not even 10% contribute to the college paper. Of course, one could get around this problem by starting an "Anonymous Letters" page. Then we could probably get quite a number of letters. This is typical of Macdonald thinking.

There is a hint in this article that what the students need is encouragement to contribute. This is the most disgusting theme of the article. "We didn't know about it". This is a popular excuse at Macdonald College. My answer is, you didn't take time to find out. I shudder at the thought that the people who are going to form the nucleus of the next generation for Canada are so short-sighted that they cannot, and will not, take part in or find out about things around them in a very small college community. How, may I ask, are they going to fill their places in the outside world? Yes, we have to pamper and nurse-feed our little dears of tomorrow because their minds are not active enough for them to take part in what's going on around them. Let's set up a group of chaperones and let them take each individual student to each activity and pet them to do something for an organization. This certainly leaves a wider scope for the university student to think for himself or herself, doesn't it?

I agree something could be done about the paper, but by whom? How can 14 people or so reflect the opinions of 900 students every week? How can they write articles, arrange and compile the paper? One has to suffer, and most often it is the arrangement. In a last, desperate move last week, each member of the staff decided that in the next two weeks, he or she would ask 4 people personally to write some article, poem, etc. The Failt-Ye results from this experiment are not yet complete. However, I will be glad to inform the student body when it is complete. Posters, letters, haven't worked. We hope this will, even though it is a sickening method to adapt for college students.

One could go on for hours on this topic. However, it is my duty to give you the facts. The article in question had its merits, but was marred by the fact that the writers of the article attempted to lay the blame of student inactivity at the foot of the editorial staff, which is barking up the wrong tree. It is refreshing that, although refusing to contribute regularly to the Failt-Ye when approached early in the fall, G.S. and J.T. have taken the trouble to at least write. We hope they will continue to improve as the articles keep coming in. I would also add that I was very disappointed at the very poor taste in which this article was begun and hope that the offensive aroma attached to the college paper will be removed as the writers improve on their journalistic potentialities. What this college lacks is an actively thinking student body.

Director, Publications.

"AS FOR THE FUTURE"

by the Features Editor.

On Feb. 19th we will be stressing once again, through the College Royal, the importance of agriculture as a primary industry in our economy. What, we ask, does the future hold for the Canadian farmer? Agriculture is a field mined with problems, and if we were to judge by the frequent, loud and rather nervous interjections made by the Minister of Agriculture in the Commons, or the determined way in which some of Canada's finest agricultural economists grit their pipe-stems, we might conclude that any lasting solutions to these problems are not yet apparent.

Certainly the demands of the next ten years will require substantial changes in farming which will effect a critically important economic reorganization of the farm industry. Larger farms, a reduced labour force, greater machinery investment per farm and per acre, and demands for greater efficiency have made the small farmers position well nigh impossible. Dr. D.L. MacFarlane, writing on "Technology and Agriculture", states - "Some 85% of our farms are too small, or their operators too limited in capital to reach the degree of mechanization called for by economic standards. These... farms represent the most intractable problem in our agriculture".

What is to become of the small farmer in the future? Unless he can obtain enough credit to increase the size and efficiency of his farm, or unless the country returns to a condition of high employment so that he can move to some other segment of the economy, he'll be left hanging right where he is, while the standard of living of he and his family inevitably drops to a subsistence level.

It seems that the majority of agricultural problems have been shifted to the shoulders of the government, and are likely to remain there in future. The wheat dilemma is a familiar example. Every year Mr. Diefenbaker and his boys have to find outside markets for a quarter of a billion bushels of grain.

On the domestic scene, in order, it seems, to maintain a healthy agricultural economy, the present government has not only continued with the price support policies of the former government, but has raised substantially the support levels on a number of products. This increase has just been enough to assure them the financial burdens of large stockpiles, while in the long run detracting from, rather than adding to the security of the farmer. The C.F.A., in fact, actually voted to have the price on hogs lowered! Strange things are happening, just two years A.V. (After the Vision).

It is rumoured that, not many moons hence, the Canadian farmers or their representatives in the C.F.A. are going to "march on Ottawa" to ask for increased government expenditures, while inflation is threatening to go from a creep to a gallop, and the government's budgetary deficit is nearing the billion dollar mark. The wisdom of any such mass demonstration is questionable, in this writer's mind, at any time, but under prevailing conditions, it seems particularly nonsensical. Certainly the farmers are entitled to their fair share of the national earnings, but what a time to ask for it! If the government continues to "come through with the lettuce!", it may not be long until the Hon. Donald Fleming is selling pencils on the corner of Spark and Bank.

At any rate, after all these derogatory remarks, it's only fair to say that the government is probably doing its best, and it may not be too long until Mr. Harkness has the ulcers to prove it.

The intriguing thing, however, about this whole "sordid mess" - as one aggie was overheard to describe it - is this. Some time in the future, solutions must be found, and can be found, to these problems. And the future, fellow students, is ours!

Any professor, stumbling upon this article, probably shuddered when he read that last line, and perhaps with justification. We raise hell sometimes - we rock and roll, we climb the water tower, we get drunk and fall down the stairwells, we go to sleep in lectures - we do these things. Sure we do. But we realize that when we leave Macdonald College as teachers, dietitians, chemists, economists, or agriculturalists, we must not only carry out the jobs for which we have been academically trained, but we must also adjust to the responsibilities, and meet the challenge of a rapidly changing society. We must do it and we will.

So - as for the future - "Age out of heart, impatient, sighed:-

'I ask what will the future be?'

Youth laughed contentedly, and cried:-

'The future leave to me!'"

"Please, sir, may I have your daughter for my wife? "

"Bring your wife around so I can see her."

A WINNING TEAM

Every college has its complaints about some phase of college activity, and it seems this college is no exception. We have a large collection of complaints, and complainers who sit on a high pedestal and look down upon the faults of the college. One complaint that seems to come up every once in a while is the complaint that Macdonald students do not support their teams to the fullest extent, with the added complaint that Macdonald students display no college spirit.

We find it hard to swallow all of this, especially after last weekend when our hockey teams put on one of the best displays of hockey that the college has ever seen.

Let us step back a few years, three to be exact, when Macdonald had a potential championship football team. True traditional college spirit was seen throughout the season. When Macdonald returned from R.M.C., after their first victory in years, a large crowd of students were out at the train to welcome the team home at 9 p.m. on a Saturday. Secondly, at all the home games, the sidelines were packed with spectators who cheered just as loud or louder than any other college. The trips of which there were two, to Bishops, although costly required two buses for the spectators, and still several went down by car.

Today the same trend can be seen at the rink, everyone is waiting in great expectation to go out this Friday and Saturday to cheer the Mac hockey team on against Bishops and C.M.R.

This whole trend can be summed up in three words. A WINNING TEAM. Any team, as long as it is within reach of the fans, and shows most of all to the fans, that it can win, will pack the house. Who wants to go out and cheer on a losing team.

Last year's hockey games were ridiculous, no one could blame the coach, or the players. It was just a case where the team did not have enough good players. After watching a few games and returning from the rink, almost ashamed to say we were yelling for Mac, we decided the games on T.V. had more excitement. However, this year's team puts the T.V. out of commission. The hockey played out there is fast and exciting.

Naturally there was a slight carry over from last year's memories, and we went out to the rink with our tongues in our cheeks, not knowing exactly what to expect from the team. But after a few games we realized the potential of the team, and even more so after last weekend's games. One would have to go a long way to see two more contrasting games, both well-played and exciting. On Friday night the game was a hard checking, roughly played game against Sir George, but on Saturday, there was a display of some really smooth hockey, clean checking, by both teams. After that who can miss another game.

To our knowledge there is only one place in Canada where the fans pay to go out and watch a losing team. The place we are speaking of is Toronto, of course. The Argo's and the Maple Leaf hockey team have been on the bottom or near to that famed cellar for several years. The only reason they pack the crowds in, and make a fabulous profit, is that there, people go out to yell AT the team and not FOR the team. If it ever comes to this at Macdonald, we feel it would be better if no one went out. However, we never have had this, and hope not to have it.

These torch-bearers for the "No fans club" need their pants kicked. To say we have no college spirit because we do not support a losing team is ridiculous. Trying to shame people into watching games by such remarks as "what kind of college spirit have you got" is even worse. All the fans want is a good game. By that we mean a game in which their team shows at least that they can win now and then.

We feel it would be a much better policy if these torch-bearers went up to ten people and said, "Are you coming out to the hockey game tonight, this team of ours is really playing terrific, why last weekend we saw one of the best games we have ever seen", than if they wrote ten letters to the Failt-Ye with the usual critical overtones. Anyone with a modicum of intelligence certainly knows that people do not like to be pushed into something; but led.

Let us not forget the Basketball team at Mac in all our fight and fury. Mac has a Basketball team and a good one at that. After starting off slowly, they have picked up wonderfully. They are boasting a five game winning streak going into this weekend against New England College and Bishops. This year's team has added a new feature to the game, something that has been lacking in the past, teamwork. The team's passing and playmaking is something for the basketball fan to watch.

We are not, in this article, trying to shame the people who rave about no fans, in the past the fans have not been too strong in some sports, but these if we look back were ones in which Macdonald had no chance of winning very many games. Neither do we wish to imply that every team here at Mac has to win the championship of their league to put on a performance wuitable to draw spectators. What every fan wants is excitement, which is a result of a close game played by two good teams.

We know for certain, now that Mac has filled these requirements, the fans will be out to cheer them on for the rest of the season.

CURLING

Just prior to the Winter Carnival, the third ice was put in at the Glenfinnan arena. The boys worked until 2.00 a.m. in a very loyal effort under the guidance of Paul Macdonald to repaint the other two ices as well. However, it is all very well to paint three rinks on a sheet of ice but the ice should have some resemblance of levelness. It is to be regretted that there is no method or cooperation by which these ices could be made level.

At the beginning of the season there were 85 members who paid fees to curl here at Mac. This represents perhaps the greatest actual participation in a single sport (apart from interclass) at this college. Again, curling seems to be typical, in that about half the members are interested and faithful, supporting a tight schedule drawn up by their Match Committee and the other half don't seem to give a damn. It would be to the advantage of all concerned, if this latter half would make up their minds and either join the club as active members, or go their way and don't meddle with a club in which they have no interest.

WE NEED A KNOWLEDGE OF WORLD AFFAIRS

It has become increasingly obvious that there is no short and easy way to make the world free or even to make our own freedom secure. It may well be that the greatest of all dangers we face (and at the present time there are many) is the danger of listening to those who think they have a quick and easy solution to this terribly difficult problem.

Whatever the solution may be, there is no doubt that it is necessary for all the citizens of Canada to keep themselves informed about the problems facing this country and the world. As far as we students, the future "building blocks" of the nation, are concerned, information about current events and current issues is no less important than our studies of Physics and Chemistry.

The primary reason, therefore, why we should be provided with regular opportunities for organized and informed discussion in significant matters is this recognition that we are citizens and as citizens we have the right and responsibility to understand and to talk about the many issues facing our country.

Some of us may someday be among the Service personnel who are now serving overseas, in most parts of the world. They are there to resist aggression and uphold the rule of law among nations. They are there as effective fighting men but their willingness to serve and to fight is derived not only from physical fitness and military skill.....there must be an understanding of why they are there and what they are opposing. This understanding comes from knowledge and information which is an essential part of their training.

Why too can we not have some of this? There is definitely need for us to be kept informed about matters of national and international concern and to have information about the countries and the people joined with us in the great effort to prevent a Third World War. Organizations such as U.N. and N.A.T.O. must be more than just letters. It is from this kind of knowledge and understanding that there will come conviction and from conviction a mental and spiritual attitude to make ourselves better citizens of our nation.

In the dangers that face us, there is a struggle for men's minds. The ideology of Communism is making a big bid to obtain the control of the thinking people all over the world.

Our way of thinking in our kind of society is different but the challenge from communism has stimulated us to a re-examination of the basis of our philosophy. We should therefore seek for and be provided with as much information as possible to help us in this very necessary understanding of the basic principles of our way of living.

B. Armstrong.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Although the Royal mainly consists of Agriculture and Home Economics demonstrations and displays, for those sports-minded people they will be able to witness some of the skill and ability of the students in the Institute of Education majoring in Physical Education.

First and second year students are putting on gymnastic displays and folk dancing under the direction of the second year students. The gymnastic displays will be in the Women's Gymnasium at 1.00 p.m. and 1.30 p.m., and the folk dancing at 1.20 p.m. The gymnastic display is under the supervision of Nancy Reid and Melodie Caron, while the folk dancing was taught by Brenda Ticehurst, Mary Ann Daransky, Mary Lawson, Rhoda Shinoff and Pam Moore. These students have given up a great deal of spare time, and have worked hard to make these displays one of the events you won't want to miss on the day of the Royal.

If all the figure skating enthusiasts wend their way over to the Glenfinnan Skating Rink around 4.00 p.m. they won't be disappointed. Icerama is an added feature to this year's Royal. Under the able direction of Marilyn Miller, sixteen girls will present a jaunty "Sailor Number". A trio consisting of Rhoda Shinoff, Judy Clement and Barbara Williams will be giving us a taste of "Wonderful Copenhagen". Marilyn will give us her rendition of Malaguena in a solo number.

Hope your day at the Royal is enjoyable.

M.H.

SWIMMING

WE DID IT !

Last Friday night the Mac Mermaids defeated Queen's and McGill in a 3-way swim meet. Margie Orser and Barbara Lapin won the 40 yards back and free style respectively. The 60 yard medley relay was won by Mary Lawson, Liz Meade and Anne Hewett. The other point winners were Nancy Reid, Sue Bernarden and Sherrill Wilson. The final results were:-

Mac - 33; McGill - 32; and Queen's - 21.

Mary Lawson,

Swimming Manager.

VOLLEYBALL

Interclass. Congratulations are in order for two Home Ec. classes - Sophs and Seniors! Each has won the volleyball championship for their section.

Which team will be the college champions? The play-off game will be on Monday, February 16th at 6.00 p.m.

A hearty thanks is extended to all referees for doing such a terrific job and giving up their spare time.

Intercollegiate - Carleton University's volleyball team is coming to challenge the Mac team on Saturday, Feb. 21st at 6.30 p.m. Spectators are welcome. So come on Mac, let's beat Carleton!

Rhoda Shinoff,

Volleyball Manager.

HOCKEY

The Intercollegiate team has played three games and has their last game scheduled for Feb. 25th at the Flenfinnan Rink against McGill whom they defeated 5-0 at McGill not long ago.

The interclass hockey started last Wednesday, and right now the teachers teams are dominating the scoring scene. The Elementary teachers defeated the Freshettes, and tied with the Seniors to lead the standings.

Badminton Manager.

QUESTION: Does the Macdonald Royal fulfil its purpose sufficiently to make it worthwhile maintaining?

- Harriett Jacobs; Elementary Teacher: I was here last year. When I tried to question the college students I got no answers-no information. I was thoroughly disgusted. It was very poorly organized.
- Don Timmins, 2nd yr. Agriculture: I feel that signs are needed. Big ones. Also an information booth. I feel that it is worth maintaining, but needs improvement. It gives the public a chance to see what we do, but it could be done better.
- Ray Simser; 2nd yr. Phys. Ed. : It is necessary. Where do we get the money?
- Jean Fraser, 3rd yr. H. Ec. : Yes, I would certainly say so. When you look at the fact that the Royal introduces people to the different phases of the H. Ec. and Agriculture which are not usually noticed by the public- things the laymen doesn't usually know about. It also gives the people on campus the opportunity to see the different aspects of the different faculties with which they are not always acquainted.
- Keith McCleary, 4th yr. Agriculture: Yes, it is the greatest service of publicity that Mac has. It gives Mac a chance to show itself to others. The rural areas of Quebec and eastern Ontario could study the latest developments in agriculture.
- Don McNaughton, 3rd yr. Agriculture: The main value in holding the Royal lies in the fact that the students get to see what the other groups are doing. It tends to increase understanding, and we need more understanding of the other groups on the campus.
